Death of R. P. Hamill.

News was received here yesterday morning of the death of Robert P. Hamill, which occurred at his home at Wells, Elko county, night before last. He went to Elko county when the railroad was being built and was agent and operator for the company at Wells for several years. Subsequently he engaged in merchandising and in the sheep business. He served a term as County Commissioner and was twice elected to the Legislature, the last time in 1892. He was the author of the famous Anti-trust act, and is said to have been the only person ever arrested for violating it. He was a telegraphic operator in Pennsylvania during the war and sent telegrams dictated by Major General Hancock to the Secretary of War at the time of the battle of Gettysburg.

"Bob," as he was familiarly called, "was a fellow of infinite jest," a practical joker, and had hosts of friends who will regret his departure "that undiscovered country from whose bourne no traveler returns."—Journal.

The Gazette adds: Among the odd enterprises that emanated from Mr. Hamill's busy brain was the supplying of the farmers of the nation with samples of Nevada's superior quality of wheat. He bought up some of Elko's choicest production and had it cleaned so it was as fine as wheat could be. Then he advertised "Golden Wheat" in Harpers and the Century. The mails overwhelmed him with orders, and "Golden wheat" went in pound sacks all over the United States. For many years Mr. Hamill carried on merchandising with George H. Meigs as partner, doing much to aid the development of the fine farms of Clover, Star, and other valleys of Eastern Elko. They built a fire-proof brick store, which stood several severe trials, and is still the best building in the town. Since then he has engaged in sheep growing, tanning, etc., with varying success.

Mr. Hamill was a native of Pennsylvania, about 45 years of age, and leaves a wife and several children. He came west with the Pacific road, and was telegraph operator on the Union, and afterwards on the Central Pacific, from 1868 on for several years. During his long residence in Nevada Mr. Hamill has made many warm and ardent friends, who will mourn his loss as many more pretensions and showy citizens will not be mourned.

Shipwreck and Heroism.

New York, January 18.—The Dutch steamer Amsterdam arrived from Rotterdam this morning. The captain reports the loss of the chief officer and five men on January 14th, in latitude 43-21, longitude 58-18, during a snow squall, by the capsizing of the lifeboat while they were attempting to rescue the crew of the sinking American fishing schooner Maggie E. Well. One of the crew of the boat managed to hold on to the capsized craft until he was rescued.

Notwithstanding the accident another crew at once volunteered to attempt to save the crew of the schooner, but the captain of the Amsterdam decided to wait until the snow squall had abated. Meantime the schooner was lost sight of and, although a search of two hours was made for her, she could not be found. The crew of the schooner, eight or ten in number, when last seen were tied to the masts and spars.

The Barlow Minstrels.

The Boise City, Idaho, Statesman says of the Barlow Minstrel Company:

"The performance was first-class. Every member of the Barlow combination is a specialist and a star. There is not a tame number on the program. Howard Powers is a famous tenor, his voice as clear as a bird's. The Barlow brothers were exceedingly fine. Master Perry Williams did himself proud in his song, 'Baby's Letter.' Scott as a frog made a great hit. As a contortionist he has no superiors. Schofield as a juggler is perfect.

"The universal verdict is that the Barlow show is one of the best on the road. Its distinguishing features are the absence of all coarseness and the superior character of the songs and specialties. From start to finish there is not a suggestion that is objectionable. The fun is healthy and harmless."

HARD TIMES PARTY.

A Big Crowd, a Good Time, and Correct Dress.

There were lots of people at Odd Fellows' Hall to participate in the hard times dance last night. The music by Zimmer's orchestra was fine. The supper did not partake much of a hard times feed, for it was good and there was lots of it.

The APPEAL society reporter was present, and is able to present a description of some of the costumes.

Bill Kinney wore chin whiskers, an open vest, with a police club and a pair of handcuffs for watch chains. He also had on other necessary clothes required by law.

Bill Crisler looked like one in a biled shirt, a misfit as a tail, and sported a two pound diamond set in a silver dollar of this year's mintage. He was light and graceful on his feet, both of which he had on the floor on several occasions.

Henry Dougherty wore a borrowed suit of old clothes, and carried a wad of water bills to lend the proper effect.

Will Watson looked so nice and neat that he went home after the grand march, he felt so out of place.

Burt Geo dug up the old suit of clothes he used when time-keeper on the Postoffice site, and with his whiskers trained to a V point looked well on the floor.

Geo. Bryson had on a tight-fitting jumper and overalls, which displayed his elegant shape advantageously. He wore no jewelry or ornaments of any description.

Lawrence Elrod and Johnny Jones dressed alike and made the hit of the evening in spring bottom pants, brogans, red shirts and faded blue chrysanthemums pinned to the lapels of their coats.

Kid Dupuis had his face neatly washed—his high neck, wore a suit of clothes loaned him by Chauncey Depew in Chicago, and looked to be nearly sixteen years old.

Charlie Mittledorfer looked well in a Scotch tweed suit, in which he crossed the plains in the early '50's, and danced the polka to every tune.

A feature of Geo. Oliver's dress was a buttonhole bouquet presented by Budd Bliss.

Will Dauchy's mustache was beautifully festooned, and his handkerchief was perfumed with extract of vanilla.

Abe Cohn, who advertises in another column, borrowed his brother Sam's Sunday clothes, and cut a wide swath.

Miles Johnson arrived early with his knee breeches, but a delegation prevailed upon him to go home and change his clothes before the crowd arrived.

Jim Newlands wore his milking clothes, and seemed to be enjoying the fun as much as anybody.

Of course we only mention the striking ones.

A Secret Fight.

Jacksonville, Fla., January 18.—The Duval Athletic Club has played its last card in the contest it has been waging with Governor Mitchell and has lost. The card consisted of the personal appeal by Manager Bowden to the Governor, begging him to cease his opposition and allow the club to pull off the Corbett-Mitchell mill publicly in Jacksonville. But the Governor was obdurate and told Bowden that the fight should not take place in Jacksonville or Florida if he could prevent it.

Nothing is left the Club now but to make arrangements for bringing Mitchell and Corbett together in the woods. As was stated in the dispatches long ago, a secret fight has been the only resource left the club ever since Governor Mitchell announced his opposition. Manager Bowden's advice for "all those who desire to witness the fight to assemble in Jacksonville on or before January 24th" is regarded here as an indication that the Club people have thrown up the sponge so far as a public fight in Jacksonville is concerned, and will now perfect plans by which Corbett and Mitchell can meet in secret and without danger of interference from the State authorities.

COAST NEWS.

Miss Annie E. MacKinnzie, one of the best known women in California, died in San Jose Tuesday.

H. D. Wallace was accidentally drowned in the Palouse river at Palouse City, Wash., Tuesday morning. The deceased leaves a widow and one child.

A Victoria Judge decided Tuesday that a man who is enticed into a saloon while drunk and induced to play poker by which he incurs a poker debt is not compelled to pay it.

Some muscraut fired into the residence of a newly married couple at Prescott, Ariz., Tuesday, while they were at dinner. The shots pierced the walls, but did no further damage.

The Eel river valley in Humboldt county is under water as a result of the recent rains. In some places the water is eight feet deep. Considerable stock has perished and fears are entertained for the safety of the people.

United States Circuit Judge Bellinger yesterday issued an order authorizing the receivers of the Union Pacific to pay out of the surplus earnings of the Oregon Railroad and Navigation Company the interest on the first mortgage.

The body of Thomas Gould, one of the unfortunates who perished in the train wreck at Austin Creek, has been recovered. Another corpse was also found, but it cannot be identified. The mind of Conductor Brown has become deranged.

A band of revolutionists, or Tomochians, Monday afternoon attempted to raid the town of Espira, Mexico, and had a lively fight with the Mexican police, in which three of the latter were killed and several wounded. The revolutionists' loss is not known.

Dennis J. Sullivan, steamfitter in the Union Iron Works of S. F., was shot and killed in Vallejo Tuesday night. George Crowley, an opium fiend, is supposed to have shot him. No one seems to know the cause of the shooting, but an eyewitness says it was done without provocation.
